AUTHOR SANDY LO REVEALS COVER OF NEW NOVEL “INDIGO WATERS”
SET TO RELEASE JUNE 17, 2014

ANNA MARIA ISLAND, FL—May 4, 2014—Sandy Lo, best known for the Dream Catchers book series and her work as a celebrity journalist, traveling barista, entertainment publicist and vegan foodie, is releasing a new novel, INDIGO WATERS.

The concept for INDIGO WATERS came about in the summer of 2013 when Lo set sail on a wild dolphin expedition, which had been on her bucket list since she was a little girl. A passionate animal activist, Lo knew the easier, more affordable way to accomplish her dream was to visit an aquarium where dolphins are held captive. Lo, instead did her research and came across www.dolphinexpeditions.com, which didn't support entrapping dolphins to interact with their guests.

“I wanted to connect with dolphins on their terms,” says Lo. “It was an amazing experience where I accomplished dreams, overcame fears, and met wonderful people.”

Some of those wonderful people even inspired characters in the book. The cover for INDIGO WATERS was recently released, designed by Sandy Lo herself, and featuring photos from the expedition's resident cook and photographer, Tita Dimnik, along with an image featuring the boat's young apprentice and inspiration for the novel's main character, Cosette LeBlanc.

“I was able to keep this beautiful experience alive by reliving it these past few months as I wrote the pages of INDIGO WATERS,” Lo says. “Of course, I mixed tons of fictional events and characters into the storyline, and added some romance.”

INDIGO WATERS is the 6th novel for Sandy Lo. Romance is usually a main theme in her books, but she is reluctant to categorize them that way. “In literature, romance is misconceived as tawdry, raunchy or fluff. I want my work to be known as more than that,” explains Lo. “There is real heart behind my plots and I am never telling a simple romance story. Each character is trying to overcome something and move toward a dream.”

INDIGO WATERS is about overcoming tragedy, moving beyond fear, discovering passion, and building strong relationships of all types.

ABOUT INDIGO WATERS

Everyone fears something. What makes Cosette Hadley's fear different from most is that it is also her greatest love, water. As a child she found solace in the water, but after a tragic boating accident she hasn't feared anything more. Madeleine, Cosette's sister, known as the wild child of her family, prided herself on being fearless and always searching for a good time. The two sisters couldn't be more opposite.

After some unexpected news, the girls find themselves spending the summer living aboard a dive boat in the Bahamas with a family friend. After five years of not being in the water, Cosette finds herself confronted with the one thing she works so hard to avoid.

Fin Hughes, the Captain's son, is tasked with the duty of getting her back into the water. Handsome and arrogant, Fin finds himself torn between the two sisters. Are his feelings for Cosette worth pursuing, or does he give into the flirtatious ways of Madeleine?

The Hadley sisters need to overcome personal obstacles. Will they finally realize they need each other to survive this summer?
